

FL&amp;L @ MIT: Events

Wednesday, October 9 2013, 11:57 PM

FL&L Home

Overview
News & Events
People
Academics
Publications
Projects & Initiatives
IAP
Help

Other Links

Open Academic Positions
FL&L Resource Center
Studios Calendar
CB/BS
MISTI
MIT OCV

Languages

Chinese
ELS
French
German
Italian \(IAP Only\)
Japanese
Portuguese
Russian
SILC
Spanish

Search FL&amp;L @ MIT:

Edward J. W. Park

Professor of Asian Pacific American Studies, Loyola Marymount University.

Why are growing numbers of Asian Americans migrating to Asia to live and work? How do we understand manifestations of this phenomenon from "Kimchi G.I.'s" in Seoul to "Sea Turtle" business consultants in Shanghai and Indian American IT experts in Mumbai? Changes in the global economy and government policies have led increasing numbers of Asian Americans to migrate to Asia to live and work.

Prof. Park's presentation will focus on three case studies drawn from Beijing, Seoul, and Tokyo to address the opportunities, challenges, and predicaments of Asian American life in Asia.

Moderator:

Shigeru Miyagawa

Professor of Linguistics and Kochi-Manjiro Professor of Japanese Language &amp; Culture at MIT

Date: Wednesday November 6, 2013Time: 4:15 PMLocation: 32-155

Sponsors: Center for Bilingual / Bicultural Studies (CB/BS), MISTI Korea, MISTI China

For more information, please contact fil-events@mit.edu

Overview | News & Events | People | Projects & Initiatives | Publications | Academics | Help | IAP | Contact | ©2011 MIT  | Last Updated: 7 October, 2013